Fire safety training

Ensure your employees are fully aware of what to do in the unfortunate event of a fire. Fire safety training is designed to educate staff on how to spot fire risks and how to avoid unnecessary fires. It also covers what to do in the event of a fire, from raising the alarm to evacuation. Conducted by Abbot Fire Group's experienced trainers, you can rest assured that your staff will be engaged and enhance their understanding of fire risks.

Basic fire safety training

This session provides advice on fire risks, measures to avoid fire starting and familiarisation of extinguisher types and their uses. Ideal for any business, and taking just 1½ hours, these sessions are suitable for up to 20 employees.

Extensive fire safety training

These comprehensive sessions are bespoke for your organisation and are delivered in conjunction with your evacuation plans and procedures. They also provide the hands-on experience of operating a fire extinguisher in a controlled environment. This type of training is ideal for larger buildings, i.e. hospitals, care homes, schools, and universities.

Fire warden training

This training is for those specifically nominated with fire warden, or fire marshal, duties. The session covers all the items within basic fire training, with very specific information on the role and responsibilities of the fire warden. This interactive session includes the day-to-day role of the fire warden, assessing fire risks, the importance of the fire safety log book, and additional responsibilities should the fire alarm sound.

It can also include practical hands-on experience of using a fire extinguisher, subject to suitable outdoor location.
